

Public Meeting

Outlaw human rights abusers IN THE BRITISH ARMY

END IMPUNITY

In 1992 Scots Guards Mark Wright and James Fisher murdered an unarmed Belfast teenager, Peter Mc Bride. In 2001 the Army sent these soldiers, convicted of murder, to fight in Iraq. The rules that allowed them to return to active service are still in place. Until that changes, soldiers convicted of human rights abuses will continue to be sent to Iraq and other conflict zones. The Article 7 - End Impunity Campaign seeks to remove the loophole that allows military personnel convicted of serious crimes such as murder, rape or torture to remain in service. Article 7 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights states "All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law."

The military should not be above the law!

Speakers:

Ken Livingstone

Mayor of London

Roy Greenslade

Media Commentator for the Guardian

Michael Mansfield QC

Angela Hegarty

University of Ulster Law Lecturer

Phil Shiner

Public Interest Lawyers

Article 7 — End Impunity Campaign
Contact: Info@patfinucanecentre.org
Phone: (028) 7126 8846
Supported by the Mayor of London, the Irish World and the Pat Finucane Centre.

The Chamber, City Hall, London

Monday, September 5 7pm